

ANARCHISTS WORK OPENLY TO PUSH THE AGITATION BY TANNENBAUM'S MOB

Hamilton, the Understudy of the Ex-Omnibus, Sees No Difference in the Aims of the I. W. W. and the Murderous Reds

SAYS UNEMPLOYED HAVE THE RIGHT TO STRIKE

Second in Command a College Graduate Who Quotes Huxley and John Boyle O'Reilly.

When Frank Tannenbaum is in the hands of the police his place is taken by John Strong Hamilton in the long and rather dark and certainly dingy room on the second floor of No. 214 West street, where the Industrial Workers of the World have their headquarters.

Tannenbaum is not an ex-walter, as he is frequently described as being. He is an ex-omnibus, and his job was to carry off the soiled dishes for the waiter. The waiter got the tips—not Frank. That is the trouble with Frank. His clarion voice is the voice that sounds a demand for free turkey and champagne. Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, both acknowledged leaders of Anarchistic thought in this country, and both of whom are cautious always in their statements for the public prints, indorse Tannenbaum and acknowledge him as a very bright and promising agitator of their cause.

Tannenbaum was arrested along with the horde that he gathered in Rutgers Square. Berkman was not arrested, although he was in the Church of St. Alphonsus when the mob drove out the little handful of aged Lenten worshippers who were "doing the Stations of the Cross."

Hamilton was there and he just managed to get away in time. Some one had to be at headquarters to answer the telephone and to see that the meetings went on, he explained to an Evening World reporter.

HE SOLVED THE MISSION OF THE POLICE.

"I saw a policeman hurrying away from the church," he said, "and I figured that he was on his way to telephone for the reserves. He did and the reserves came. I would have sent word to Frank if I could have done so, but his arrest is not a detriment to the cause."

Hamilton is a man just inside of thirty. He is a man of breeding and a graduate of the University of Virginia in 1903. His degree was Bachelor of Science. Instead of going up as he departed college, with his degree, he went down and he has remained down. He admits it and he will let any casual student of sociology and literature buy him food. He is from Southern stock and good American ancestry and had the advantage of four years under the old trees of the famous institute of learning at Charlottesville, founded by Thomas Jefferson. Hamilton, as the acting head of the I. W. W., pending the incarceration of the ex-omnibus, is a powerful contrast to Tannenbaum, the student of Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman.

The young Austrian is as dapper as the stiffest dresser among the gunmen of the east side. He is an east side product and has a certain surly facility of expression that would make a cautious man put his purse in the most secure part of his garments. Tannenbaum, the youth who could stand a short while at honest labor, carrying the greasy dishes of rich and poor to the scullions of restaurant kitchens, is the chief of John Strong Hamilton, University of Virginia, 1893.

Clearly he is on the down grade. Hamilton is so poorly clad that he couldn't get a job if he wanted one. His hair hasn't been cut in more than a month, and it is only with infrequency that he sports a collar. At thirty-nine he is without a home and with a hat that is no reputable thing for the lowliest snow-shooper.

"What do you do it?" he was asked. "To bring the question of handling the unemployed properly to a direct issue," he replied. "The unemployed have a right to strike just as the union employed men have a right to strike. The man without a job is down—

But something, one the end; some work of noble note
May yet be done."

Hamilton's eyes were dreamier than ever as he quoted this fragment of verse. He was the type of anarchist that may be seen any Saturday afternoon in the group meetings in the east side or in the Ferrer schools. He did not finally deny that he was an Anarchist and that the movement in which he was giving his efforts was Anarchy organized. It is a new phase of Anarchy, seeing its first battlefield in the City of New York, a battlefield with the force against law and order aiming at and against the laws of the State, the churches of all creeds, the laws of the city and the police who typify order.

Hamilton was not the only I. W. W. man The Evening World writer met and talked with, but he was the most interesting. John J. O'Brien, an industrial iron worker out of a job, who confessed to having ripped up things as an agitator in various cities of the country, blew in on the bean feast.

HERE'S A MAN WANTS A JOB, BUT BALKS AT SNOW.

"What I want is a job," he declared. "Theories don't amount to much." O'Brien is the replica of Jim Jeffries, powerful of build, with the same fighting jaw and the same short nose.

"Why not shovel snow?" he was asked. "Pneumonia," he replied with a laugh. "Look at them shoes." He reached down and pulled off one of a pair of rubbers and showed a stout-soled shoe that had been cut seemingly to ease the pain of a corn.

"They call me the White Hope," he went on. "I'm big and strong, but I haven't had food enough to shovel snow. I would faint. Take it from me, I would faint after shoveling for an hour. There was hardly any doubt of that, for finally O'Brien declared that he had a perfect right to refuse to work."

"Why can't we unemployed strike just as do the unions?" he asked. "We don't get what's coming to us. Some day we will Hamilton broke in to caution the ironworker and incidentally to say that O'Brien was not a member of the I. W. W. O'Brien admitted calmly that he was not a union man, not an I. W. W. or anything else except an agitator and trouble maker. Trouble making was his particular forte and he is gloriously admitted it.

On the straight anarchy side of the question Goldman and Berkman admit their pleasure at the attacks being made by the I. W. W. on the existing form of society. The I. W. W. is giving a form of combined attack which the Anarchists find new but highly satisfactory, and in the series of Tannenbaum disorders there have been more Anarchists participating than mere unemployed people.

Ninety out of a hundred of the Tannenbaum followers are the product of the Berkman and Goldman east side schools of anarchy. Hamilton of Virginia and Plunkett of Cornell are Anarchists, and they are high up toward the surface just now. Plunkett spent yesterday in jail, but seemed to enjoy it. Hamilton expects to go to jail before long.

"If I am sent to jail," said Hamilton, "I shall have food and shelter without taking charity. I don't like charity. Did you ever hear the couplet written by John Boyle O'Reilly on the subject we have under discussion?" he asked. His eyes became hazy again as he recited these two lines:

"Organized charity, scrippled and loosed
In the name of a cautious, statistical Christ."

"But this mob from the east side that raided a church and scared a priest and several old people nearly stiff?" he was asked.

"They are the Americans of the future," he replied.

Hamilton had finished his dinner and discussion.

MAYOR AND POLICE ARE INVESTIGATING FIGHT IN "JACK'S"

Absence of Patrolmen From Scene of Battle Also to Be Looked Into.

Mayor Mitchell has taken a hand in the investigation of the free for all fight at Jack's restaurant at 8 o'clock this morning between college students and waiters, during which one of the students was so badly used up that it became necessary to send him to a hospital.

There are several versions of the fight. One is that an intoxicated man said something to one of the college men and that he was promptly knocked down. The man who spoke to the student was a stranger to him. All the college men were in evening dress. The remark that caused the blow is unprintable.

According to the information given Arthur Woods, the Mayor's secretary, immediately after the student had chastised the stranger for his epithet, a flying wedge of waiters descended upon the students. One was rushed, it is alleged, and fell, striking his head against a marble cigar stand, gashing his forehead. The fight raged out to the sidewalk, where two of the students were knocked senseless.

Twenty minutes passed and no patrolmen was in sight. Mayor Mitchell proposes to learn where the patrolman on that beat was. Secretary Woods has communicated with Commissioner McKay to that effect.

"I have ordered a rigid and impartial investigation of the occurrence at Jack's restaurant," said Mayor Mitchell. "If we find that the responsibility for a fracas of that kind is on the restaurant its night license will be cancelled. But I want it understood that I have no prejudice. My mind is open."

"I have written to John Dunstan, proprietor of Jack's restaurant, for a report," said Secretary Woods.

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Stop eating meat for a while if your Bladder is troubling you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and laggard. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, waste and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lit-a-water drink.

MRS. VANDERBILT SETS SIMPLICITY STYLE IN TEN-DOLLAR DRESS

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 6.—Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr. has set a style for simplicity on the beach by appearing in a $10 suit which she selected in preference to more elaborate garments submitted for her approval.

After returning the costly clothing she walked into a small shop and bought a black silk dress of conventional cut. With the exception of a collar of green and white, it was severely plain in comparison to the very elaborate suits being worn this season.

Mrs. Vanderbilt arrived at the Ca-also in a modish light blue sporting coat over a lingerie frock and wearing a close fitting white taffeta hat flared on the side. She carried a certain colored parasol.

The annual golf ball at The Breakers was one of the largest and most brilliant affairs of the season. The large dining room was made to represent a Southern garden scene. The columns were decorated with climbing roses, with a palm tree in front of every two columns. Overhead wisteria and baskets of cut flowers were strung with electric bulbs. At midnight a shower of bouquets was released from the centre of the ceiling, and a huge tulip opened a rain of confetti.

ACTOR TEARLE QUILTS LAP OF LUXURY FOR LUDLOW JAIL CELL

Arrested at Door of Home for Failing to Pay First Wife's Alimony.

Actor Conway Tearle, the latest in Mrs. Roberta Menzies-Corbin-Hill-Tearle's series of husbands, turned up the curly haired corner of his great coat to barricade himself against an icy breeze as he was leaving No. 170 West Seventy-second street last night when a young man slapped him on the shoulder and asked:

"You are Mr. Tearle, the actor, aren't you?"

"Oh, yes, I'm Mr. Tearle, what is it?" inquired the actor.

"I'm a deputy sheriff and I have a warrant for your arrest," said Deputy Sheriff Morton.

"That's not surprising," replied Tearle; "father expected it, Old Top. Now what's next?"

"Just come along with me," said Morton, and the two men got into a subway train and were soon within the walls of Ludlow Street Jail. Then his light went out and that was some blow to a fellow who had been so accustomed to the spotlight.

For several months Tearle has not paid his first wife, Josephine, the $5 a week allowance the court ordered him to pay. Mrs. Tearle No. 1 charged that her former hubby had been coming riding in a big limousine with his present wife—"the Pearl of Sheepshead Bay"—and that they occupied a richly furnished apartment at No. 170 West Seventy-second street.
